

Playtime is an exciting initiative presented by Gasworks Arts Park and Midsumma Festival that encourages the creation and development of original Australian theatre with a queer focus.

Background

Playtime is an exciting partnership between Gasworks Arts Park and Midsumma Festival, which cements many years of Midsumma arts events every summer at Gasworks. We frequently attend performing arts markets and showcases, and have noticed that the plays presented for touring to mainstream audiences seldom deal with queer themes.

It is time to change that!

Playtime aims to identify, support and develop new talent and get queer issues out there for mainstream audiences to consider and enjoy. The LGBTQIA+ community is diverse, exciting and has stories and ideas that deserve to be heard on the stages of performing arts venues throughout the country. This is the chance you have been waiting for to tell a bold, funny, new, important, or exciting story to Australian theatre audiences.

The Opportunity

Creators of new or developing works of theatre are invited to submit their proposals for consideration by a panel of supportive industry professionals. If you have an idea for a show, a completed script, or anything in between, we want to hear from you. Up to 6 works will be selected by the industry panel, and invited to present a 15 minute staged reading on Wednesday 30 January 2019 at Gasworks Arts Park as part of Midsumma Festival. One work will be selected to receive ongoing support and development with a view to becoming a full-scale work to be presented in Midsumma Festival 2020. The ultimate aim of Playtime is to tour the work nationally to expose it to a wide range of metropolitan, regional and rural audiences.

selection criteria

Queer themes

It is important that your work incorporates an exploration of queer themes in some way. Obviously how you achieve this is up to you. The panel will be looking for works that progress audience understanding of queer issues.

Audience appeal

To ensure the longevity of your work, it is vital that it appeals to a range of audiences. This doesn't mean that everyone has to love it, but consider where this show may be seen in the long-term - for example, your show may end up touring rural Australia, it may end up playing to a variety of age groups, and so on. If your work only appeals to a very specific market segment, it will be challenging to expose it to a broad audience. The panel will be looking for works that have a broad appeal, and that can be experienced by a range of audiences.

Authenticity

Playtime is eager to uncover original, unique and authentic stories. The panel will be looking for works that clearly communicate engaging stories or captivating commentary upon current or historical events.

Style

While your work may not have a design concept in mind, it is important to consider the look of your work. The panel will be looking for works that aim for arresting style in design and/or visual presentation. Remember that a dynamic visual presentation and design does not necessarily mean a huge budget! The panel is looking for creative ways of creating dynamic productions.

Accessibility

It is often said that the best stories are those of universal appeal. While you are welcome to tell your personal story, remember to transcend personal expression in order to create work that is of interest to an audience.

Excellence

Are you dedicated to your idea? Passionate about the arts and queer issues? Committed to creative development? Yes? Perfect, you've just fulfilled this criteria. The panel will be looking for dedication to excellence in craft.

Creative team

The panel will be looking for a creative team which radiates energy and passion.

Capacity to tour

The long-term aim for Playtime is to tour your work, so keep this in mind from the very beginning. If your show features a cast of ten people and takes three days to bump in, it will be difficult to create an efficient and affordable tour. Be conscious of the logistics of your show; particularly complicated tech requirements, large scale casts and set/ design requirements.
